Military Technicians

Military Technicians (MTs) are our most valuable assets. They have an important dual role, as both a civilian employee and dedicated Army Reserve Soldier, which is tailored to meet the day-to-day management necessary to maintain mobilization readiness of an Army Reserve unit.

This dual civilian-military status assures MTs are available at regularly scheduled Battle Assemblies in a military status which parallels their civilian employment; assuring MTs will deploy with their units to which assigned and enhancing stability and maintenance of high skill levels in those functions performed by the MTs.

Training

The MTs receive initial training within their first year at the 84th Training Command (Leader Readiness), Fort McCoy, WI. There is ample opportunity for continuing education at the 84th Tng Cmd (LR) and other various civilian and military schools.

Challenging Assignments

Our program employs more than 8,500 MTs in occupations such as aircraft maintenance, personnel, supply, financial management, logistics, operations, and marine and mobile equipment maintenance. When we hire a new MT we give them the opportunity to make a difference right away. The MTs are given challenging work assignments on mission-critical projects within the first few months. Whatever your assignment, you will be given the opportunity and the resources to gain unparalleled, broad based work experience.
